MacArthur's Men Seize Control of Wakde; Jungle Fighters Take Myitkyina.

By The Associated Press
Allied offensives in the Pacific and New Guinea have brought control of the Wakde area of New Guinea and sent Japanese veterans into the main Japanese base in Burma.

American Sixth army troops have moved more than 100 miles up the New Guinea coast from the Japanese base of the Wakde island and are now in a position to launch a speedy amphibious assault on the Japanese base of the Wakde island.

MacArthur's latest leapfrogging movement, which gave him most of the island and a quickly widening beachhead on the adjacent New Guinea mainland within 48 hours, today's campaign disclosed.

6th Army Men Land

An American amphibious task force landed on the Hollandia beachhead less than a month ago on the mainland beach near the 110 miles northwest of Hollandia, at dawn Wednesday.

By nightfall, they had fanned out and down the coast for 10 miles and taken small islands, including the southernmost of the island of Wakde.

These Landings were Unopposed

The enemy was completely unopposed and his defense negligible, the communiqué said.

Rocket guns and naval guns, tanks and fighters blasted the way for the Yanks coming out of the beachhead.

In Burma, Lt. Gen. Joseph W.

Schwartz's troops exploited their surprise capture of the Myitkyina and advanced into the city's outskirts under artillery fire.

Block Supply Route

Young Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill, some of whose marauders captured the Myitkyina airfield, said another column west of the city to block the supply line from Mogoke, 40 miles west. Other allied forces were moving on Myitkyina from the north.

Approximately 80 airplane miles to the east, Chinese columns were developing a pincer drive to clear a portion of the enemy-held Burma road and effect a juncture with Stilwell's army, thus connecting the Lodo and Burma roads and opening an overland supply route to China's scantily equipped army.

The Japanese-controlled

Bahia announced last night that Japanese, Java, Japan's main base in the Netherlands East Indies and former headquarters of the Japanese fleet, has been bombed heavily.

On the Indian side of the Indo-

Burma war, an Indian army brigade in a sudden slashing attack of circumscribed march through the jungle threw a road block across the Tiddim road south of the main position. Allied headquarters announced.

This march through the rough country around the enemy's eastern flank cut off the Japanese from the division which had been attacking Imphal from the south.

Jap Attack Repulsed

The communiqué said many Japanese were inflicted by the Americans making up the brigade. The Japanese Jap counter-attacks and much equipment was captured.

South of Imphal, at the one enemy roadblock remaining between the base and Kohima, Allied troops repulsed a series of Japanese attacks, it was stated.

Japanese storming against an allied roadblock by Chintheis in the Mawla vicinity 150 miles southwest of Myitkyina were engaged in a bitter 11-hour battle. The enemy suffered heavy losses, including a regimental colonel.

The Japanese also were engaged in a struggle along the Myittha river where, in one instance, Gurkhas withdrew from a strong position and watched two enemy parties fight each other for an hour.

The Rhams and Mawla roads are the chief supply routes to the Japanese from Mandalay to the south.

American air commando operations including the Chintheis planes, have been attacking Japanese positions 46 miles north of Bhamo with 500-pound bombs and fragmentation bombs.

TOLEDO WORKERS RETURN

TOLEDO, O., May 19.—Approximately 600 city employees returned to work today after a strike which had been called off by a promise of a 10-cent pay increase.

WALDO FIGHTER
PILOT HOME

Lt. Jack Gompf, Veteran of 94 Missions, Back from Italian Air War.

Home after a series of experiences that sound like they were lifted from a best seller is First Lt. Jack Gompf, fighter pilot of a Spitfire, now spending a 20-day leave at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gompf, of Marion.

Here with him is his wife, the former Jane Ryder of Massillon, also on leave for the duration of her husband's leave. From her duties as a member of the faculty of the Massillon schools.

Lady Luck rode with Lt. Gompf, veteran of 94 missions in the Italian war sector, during his more than one and one-half years' service overseas, but almost let him down when he and five of his buddies set out to hitch-hike to the states aboard the "Sad Sack," an old bomber plane which crashed into the Gulf of Guinea off the African Ivory Coast as it was being ferried home early this month.

Not Talkative

Lt. Gompf's part in the war is more or less something that has to be done, not talked about, and even his latest experience of crashing in the ocean and being literally washed ashore is just another chapter in the book. He speaks casually of making a crash landing while on patrol duty in Italy when his plane was "torn up pretty badly," and admits, when prompted down to it, that he has had some experiences. He dismisses the subject with the comment that "some of them aren't worth talking about and others, because we are in the war, can't be mentioned."

The story of the crashing of the "Sad Sack" was told recently by one of Lt. Gompf's fellow officers, Lt. Robert Connor of Columbus, and was carried in a news dispatch from that city.

Lt. Gompf, who had been overseas since September, 1942, and his buddies, together with the crew of the "Sad Sack," set off from Casablanca, stopped for routine inspection, had two leaking gas tanks patched, and then started on the last long lap before "the big war."

Saturday Set As

Straw Hat Day

Saturday will be straw hat day in Marion.

Although many merchants have had summer-style headwear for men in their windows for several days, they have picked tomorrow as the official date for men to put their felt fedoras into storage for the summer.

Straw hat shoppers will find a complete assortment to choose from, both in sailors and snap brims, in Marion stores.

Deadline Nears On

Cigaret Licenses

The 1943-44 licenses for the sale of cigarettes will expire Monday, County Auditor Harry V. Mounts reminded vendors today.

Applications are slow coming in, the records of the auditor's office show. To date only 41 out of the 240 vendors on file have applied for permission to sell cigarettes. Licenses for a year are $25.

Marion Soldier
Stricken at Camp
in Pennsylvania

Pvt. Frank Cafagno, 21, of 674 Sugar street, formerly active in football at St. Mary's Parochial high school, died at Camp Reynolds, Pa., Thursday morning of an illness.

Trichinosis was given as the cause of death. It is an intestinal disorder caused by eating infected pork. He had been ill four weeks.

The body was to be returned to Marion tonight.

Before entering service, Pvt. Cafagno was employed at the Scioto Ordnance Plant and took part in baseball and football activities among plant workers.

He entered service Dec. 18, 1942, and was a private in an ordnance unit.

He was born Oct. 20, 1922, in Marion, the son of Joseph Cafagno and Ann Viorow Cafagno, both natives of Italy. He is survived by his father, his widow, Twila June Schneek Cafagno, and a daughter, Sally Jo. He also leaves a brother, Sgt. Nicholas Cafagno, of Camp Lee, Va., and two half-sisters, Marilyn Ann and Mary Frances Cafagno.

Friends may call at the home on Sugar street after noon Saturday. Pvt. Cafagno's body is being escorted to Marion by Tech. Sgt. Stanley R. Nowaczky.

MARION TEAM SIGNS

WITH CHICAGO CUBS

Agreement Expected To Strengthen Local Leaguers.

Marion's Ohio State league baseball organization has signed a working agreement with the Chicago Cubs, a development that is expected to bring both talent and some financial assistance to the cellar-dwelling Marion team.

Club officials, in announcing this news today, predicted a far-reaching shakeup in the Marion squad and the organization of a more experienced team built around players to be furnished by the Cubs.

The Marion agreement is with the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League, a Double-A circuit ranking with the American association. The Los Angeles team is in the Chicago Cub farm system.

No Operation Restriction

Marion's agreement with Los Angeles does not make Marion a farm team in the strict sense of the word because it leaves Manager Grover Hartley free to play the men he wants to use. Under a straight farm team agreement, Marion would have been obligated to use the men furnished by the parent club organization regardless of the wishes of the local manager, but the agreement worked out by Hartley and the Los Angeles team gives Hartley freedom to run the team as he sees fit.

The Cub organization will retain little to all players it sends to Marion, but other players acquired independently by Hartley will also be used and these will not become Cub property.

In addition to supplying talent, which is expected to clear the way for a shakeup of the Marion squad, the agreement will provide the Marion team with some revenue from the Cubs.

First Players Arrive

The agreement has already started to pay dividends. The Los Angeles team has already sent Louis Funk, an outfielder, and James Allworth, a first baseman, both reporting to Manager Hartley last night at Newark. Others are to follow soon. It is

BRITISH WATCH

Germans Reported To Have Massed Gliders and Planes on Invasion Coast.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 19.—The Germans have massed gliders and transport planes in concealed hangars along the European coast in numbers sufficient to drop at least one airborne division on Britain, the London Daily Mail said today, asserting its information came from "excellent sources."

The British do not rule out the possibility of such a German counter-invasion. The enemy troops might be assigned to knock out nerve centers vital to the allied war machine.

Only last Saturday, Field Marshal Lord Ironside, commander of the home guards and former chief of the British imperial defense staff, warned "it is quite possible that when we make our great invasion, the Germans will make some sort of effort to land in this country."

The Daily Mail said the German aircraft reported assembled along the channel coast included some huge six-engined Dorniers, each capable of carrying 150 men. The paper mentioned medium gliders and Junkers 52 transports as also in the enemy array.

Like the allies, Germany presumably is concerned with safeguarding her military secrets against D-day approaches. A Moscow broadcast heard here said Germany has cancelled all visas to leave the reich and Germans reaching the frontiers are being turned back.

The DNB agency announced in a broadcast from Berlin that the Nazi air force intended "to smash Portsmouth, Plymouth, Bristol and the docks of London"—ports it described as "bristling positively crammed to the bursting point—with all manner of invasion equipment."

Moral Man Is County's First

Soldier in Prisoner Exchange

Pvt. John William Koontz, 23, of Morral will become the first Marion county prisoner of World War II to set foot on his native land under an exchange of prisoners, an Associated Press dispatch from Washington today indicated.

He has been a prisoner of war a year and four months, first of the Italians and then of the Germans when they took over in Italy.

Now he is one of four Ohioans on a tentative list of 64 sick or wounded American soldiers being repatriated aboard the exchange ship, Gripsholm, due to arrive early next month in the United States, according to today's announcement.

Pvt. Koontz will bring with him a wound that is expected to make one of his arms useless for life. He indicated the seriousness of his wounds in a message to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Koontz, of Morral, sometime ago. They had received earlier reports of his being wounded, but at that time the wound was not listed as serious.

Last June the parents received word through the Red Cross in Switzerland and a letter from a soldier in Australia that their son was all right, and that he was in an Italian hospital. He expected at that time to be transferred to a prison camp in the near future.

Parents of Pvt. Koontz were officially notified of his return in a telegram this morning.

1,500 PLANES
BATTER BERLIN
AND BRUNSWICK

Aerial Offensive Resumed in Force Today After Two-Day Lapse.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 19.—American Fortresses and Liberators and Fighter escorts, described officially as a strong force and probably numbering up to 1,500 planes, resumed the allied aerial offensive after a five-day lapse today and struck at targets in the Berlin and Brunswick areas.

The attack, coming less than 24 hours after Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of U. S. army air forces, had declared Germany had not yet seen the full weight of allied air power, precipitated a running air battle right across Germany to the sky over the German capital, German broadcasts indicated.

The ensuing bombardment—the U. S. strategic air force's 10th attack on the Nazi hub and the third on the capital this month—was so heavy it disrupted German news broadcasts.

46,000 Tons of Bombs

From the RAF and the USAAF Berlin has taken about 46,000 tons of bombs up to today.

Channel observers said the parade of aircraft setting out for the continent today was the biggest seen during the war.

While the American "heavies" were smashing at Berlin and Brunswick, small formations of allied expeditionary air force and RAF Stinsons, Typhoons and fighter-bombers attacked unspecified objectives in northern France this morning, taking advantage of clear skies to press home the attack.

Tracing the progress of the aerial invaders, the German broadcasts said the bombers swept over the German border, crossed the much-bombed Hanover and Brunswick areas to Brandenburg—in the Berlin area—and finally appeared over the German capital itself.

The American "heavies" last hit Berlin May 7 and 8. The RAF's Mosquitos worked the city over Tuesday night.

It was the first sign of major air activity from Britain in six days, but allied heavy bombers last Sunday smashed at enemy targets from the Mediterranean on the concluding day of a historic 30-day record offensive.

France Believed Hit

As the high altitude armada swept across Europe the Vichy radio said another air assault on northern France and Belgium—a likely resumption of the attack on the enemy's anti-invasion railroads and airfields—was underway.

The Germans said heavy air battles were being fought as the Americans pierced Berlin's defenses and indicated the center of battle was over Osnabruck where the "heavies" bombed railroad yards last Saturday in the concluding strike from Britain in the month-long offensive.

An east coast observer said the largest formation of planes seen from there during the entire war thundered over for two hours during the morning, headed to the south.

Disaster at Sevastopol One of

Nazis' Most Costly Failures

AP Man First Correspondent To View Wreckage of German Army in Crimean City.

By EDDIE GILMORE

Associated Press Correspondent

SEVASTOPOL, May 19.—Seven miles from battered Sevastopol on the ancient Crimean cape the smoldering, shelling remains of one of Hitler's most disastrous military operations of the war, viewed for the first time by any war correspondent.

The beaten, shaken and demoralized German army of the Crimea—once 200,000 strong—fell back here for its promised evacuation to Romania after the Red army cracked the defenses of Sevastopol, itself a smoking city of dead where only a few buildings are left standing.

At Chersonesus cape, on blood-soaked soil within shooting distance of the scene of the famous charge of the light brigade, is the grim, grisly story of another of Hitler's Russian campaign errors of holding on until time ran out.

American-made tanks, incidentally, played a part in the final finale in the latest Crimean war which ended May 12.

Col. Gen. Sergei Brinzov, 40, chief of staff of the fourth Ukrainian army, said 25,000 Nazi prisoners were taken here but the mute dead, the shocking scene of their last hours and the prisoners tell the real horror of what a column of the 11th German infantry division described as "immeasurably worse than Dunkerque."

But here it is before me. I'll try to let you see for yourself through my eyes.

We are standing on a cliff about 35 feet high, overlooking the Black sea. Behind us is the debris of Sevastopol. Delayed action mines and bombs are exploding constantly, sometimes too close in front of us to see over the blue horizon is Romania, which was the German goal. Immediately behind us is what once was an airfield.

Just below, the waterline is strewn with German corpses. In between the sprawled, drowned dead he beached rats which homeless made a home out of them. Fifty feet to my right is a beached landing barge crisscrossed with corpses. A hundred feet to the left the black hull of a small transport ship lies on its side, a sinister shark's fin.

For hundreds of yards along this cliff is the picture of many a man's last hour.

"But how many did get away?"

"About 30,000," said Gen. Brinzov. "Between April 4 and May 5. This includes Romanians and Germans. But remember they had 200,000."

Just off the right, about 200 yards in, a bomb-plastered German's light house, where General Boehme hid in the last hours.

We asked a German prisoner about him.

"He was crazy in the last days," he said. "We had to watch him to keep him from committing suicide. He just sat in the cellar, moaned and held his head while shells burst above. No, it wasn't from fright. He just did not want to surrender."

"Voluntarily, not a single German general gives up his troops," interposed Gen. Brinzov.

A captured colonel, Hans Mesinger, 33rd artillery regiment from the Rhineland, gave a good account.

When panic seized the thousands of Chersonesus May 12, he said, officers lost command over the soldiers, fighting among themselves and bickering over the German placing.

General Boehme repeatedly refused his colonels' offer to surrender to the advancing Russians. Finally the men took matters of

U. S. TROOPS
DRIVE ON ITRI
KEY JUNCTION

French Drive Wedge Into Middle of Strong German Fortifications.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, May 19.—French troops and U. S. tanks broke into the Hitler line at its very center today in a smash toward Sant'Olivia, a front outpost declared, as the allies hammered all along the front at this new mountain wall manned by the Germans after "a disorderly retreat."

Sant'Olivia—only four miles from Pico on the island road supplying the Nazi front—is at the tip of a pie-shaped wedge driven into the mountains between Pontecorvo and Penteo—both captured by the Allies. A headquarter's officer declared the Germans had made "a disorderly retreat instead of a mere withdrawal" between the Liri valley and the sea when they fell back from their smashed Gustav defenses in the Hitler line under combined American and French blows.

The Nazis suffered high losses in equipment, and their artillery strength particularly has diminished, he asserted.

Even as the French supported by American tanks threatened Sant'Olivia, U. S. troops struck close to the key Apennine way junction of Itri, menacing the German supply road from the coastal end. British and Polish troops were pushing westward from their victory at Cassino on the northern flank.

It appeared likely that any breakthrough in the south to the outskirts of Itri would compel the Germans to pull out of the entire southwestern end of the Hitler line and swing their front into the mountain range running northwesterly from Pontecorvo through Fondi to Terracina on the coast.

But such a line would be vulnerable to flank attack from the Anzio beachhead, where strong Fifth army forces are massed though quiet. It is believed the enemy has not had time to prepare fortifications on the Pontecorvo-Terracina route on a scale comparable with the Gustav or Hitler lines.

From all reports it appeared the Fifth and Eighth armies were off to an excellent start on the agreed objective of destroying the German 10th army.

(The German high command, reporting the heaviest fighting in the center, at Pontecorvo and to the southwest, acknowledged a "local dent" in the Hitler line at Sant'Olivia but said it was "healed off." This indicated a French-driven wedge toward the mountain only some four miles from Pico, on the inland road from threatened Itri.)

Poles of the Eighth army, pushing beyond fallen Cassino on the northern flank, fought within a mile and a half of Piedmonte, four miles west of Cassino near highway 6—the road to Rome.

Advance 17 Miles

On the central sector south of the Liri valley, Fifth army forces reached a point 17 miles from their jumping-off place of the week-old allied offensive by taking a 4,120-foot Monte Faggeto overlooking the Liri-Pico road, the enemy's only communication link between the ends of the now-dented Hitler line.

French troops yesterday captured the village of Monticelli, four miles northwest of Esperia, and drove on toward Sant'Olivia, generally regarded as one of the strong points of the Hitler line.

Monticelli has been described as situated in the heart of the area where the Hitler-line defenses guard the edge of the Liri valley. The allied command declared the Americans were in close contact with the battered enemy in the mountains forming the southern stronghold of the Hitler line and asserted the Eighth army, "quick to exploit its successes" in the Cassino region, "pressed the enemy vigorously back against the line."

Poll in Midwest Shows No Swing To Isolationism
By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
PRINCETON, N. J., May 18—Ever since Wendell Willkie was defeated in the Wisconsin primary, arguments have been raging over the question whether the Middle West is turning isolationist.
A survey has just been completed by the Institute to determine whether this is true. A question concerning post-war international cooperation was put to the voters of the Middle West in the survey, and the responses compared to the vote in the same section on the same question one year ago.
The comparison shows that while there has been some change in Middle Western sentiment, the change is not large, and that the rank and file of voters in the area are just about as much in favor of the principle of international cooperation as the voters elsewhere in the country.
The question and the results follow:
"Do you agree with those people who think that the United States should take an active part in world affairs after the war, or with those people who think we should stay out of world affairs?"
The vote of the East and West Central sections combined is shown below, and the vote for the whole nation presented for comparison.
Take Active Part Stay Out Under
Mid West, 72% 18% 10%
All U. S., 73 18 9
The survey conducted one year ago on the same question showed a vote of 74 per cent in the Middle West for taking an active part in world affairs.

Plain Words, Plain Results

DURING the last few days of the Foremen's strike at the Ford Motor Co. plant at Ford, Mich., a plain word was followed by plain results. The strike was called off, and the plant was back in operation. The plain word was "no more strikes." The plain results were a return to work.

Gen. Arnold has expressed clearly the fixed opinion of every member of the armed services. The significance of his statement, however, is not what he said, but the fact he said it, instead of a civilian official. It hints at a new and more forthright technique of handling work stoppages. A general's word, under the circumstances, carries infinitely more weight than the word of a civilian official, even though the extremity which makes this true is a disturbing reflection on the attitude of those who have made it necessary.

Neither Gen. Arnold nor any other high military official—nor, for that matter, any fighting man whose welfare is affected by work stoppages in essential war industry—is concerned with the relative merits of labor disputes. Members of the armed services have a job to do. They can do it if they are supported by the civilian population. Without support, they cannot do it. It is that simple in the showdown. A few plain words may bring more plain results than all the complex formulas and confusing arguments brought to bear on the problem of making civilians accept their responsibility in the nation's greatest war.

Thought for D-Day

ALLIED troops in Italy have reached the Hitler line, first German defense network to be named for the fuhrer. They reached it because they were willing to pay the price for breaching the Gustav line. They will go through it, if that is what the plan calls for, by the same bloody bargaining for victory. The Maginot line, the Marne line, the Gustav line, the Hitler line—all the lines that have been or will be—cannot stand up against a determined enemy equipped with plenty of material and a comprehensive plan of attack. Fixed defenses can make victory costly. They can prolong campaigns. They can give beleaguered populations a false sense of security. But they cannot stay off defeat.

The Function of Diversion

GEORGE ADE, generous contributor to the humor of his times, is dead—just when we need him. A grateful public can only hope that Indiana may turn out an adequate replacement. The function of diversion cannot be slighted with safety. It is as essential to our sanity as the companion function of serious single-mindedness which sometimes seems to be getting the upper hand. There is acute need for the George ADE—articulate specialists in the art of keeping open the safety valve of laughter. It is painfully evident lately that the past masters in the field are reaching the end of the line. Even Cobb is dead. Ring Lardner, Will Rogers and Joe Cook are missed. Perhaps their places are being taken; perhaps Jack Benny, Edgar Bergen, Fred Allen and the new school of radio script writers will be raised to the status of masters in due course of time. But there is a present doubt: the function of diversion demands considerably more than a high Cressley rating. It entails an attitude and a philosophy of humor which the George ADEs have had and the rest of us have profited by. Without it, the more abundant life is a snare and a delusion, a barren prospect of endless prosperity and work without a giggle in it anywhere.

No Place To Go

THE threat of the America First organization to nominate its own presidential candidate sounds too good to be true. These ultra-nationalists would be performing a public service if they put themselves in political quarantine during the national election.

They have no place to go. No presidential possibility has given them any encouragement. Neither major party will give them any, either. The objection is not to their professed nationalism, as such, but to its accompaniments. They are nationalists in the pattern of the German Nazis, more interested in destruction of opportunity for their enemies than advancement of the nation's composite strength. They have tried to embarrass various public figures with their support and have been turned down. Their existence as a vocal minority has given rise to the charge that their support is being solicited on the sly, but there is no evidence to prove it. They stand repudiated in every quarter, victims of their own inability to understand that the doctrines they advocate are as alien to the majority of Americans as representative democracy and tolerance are alien to the European organizations they so closely resemble.

News Behind the News

Dies Believed To Have Quit Because of Health, Not Because of Pressure.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 19—Who "quit Dies?" Moderate chiefs of the CIO political action committee, the Communist and some otherwise intelligent liberals, at the restoration of the congressional investigation of un-American activities, believe the popular opinion that they did it. These journals and people who suggest they were as surprised as anyone, indeed, they do not even claim credit in their usual loose talk.

It is true enough that the government established some new war industries in the Dies Texas district, and the CIO has organized a number of these workers who came into Port Arthur and Beaumont from the north. It is no doubt probable also that he would have lost these two cities. His single opponent for the coming primary is a Beaumont man, while he came from Orange, a small town, which also has a new shipyard.

But his strength had always been in what is called the north counties of the district, which he earned even in an unsuccessful senatorial race against O'Daniel. It would have been a close, tough issue, but he could have won.

This is the conviction of the whole Texas delegation in congress, with a single exception of Lyndon Johnson, who alone thought Dies was done.

Kival Not CIO Man

Even so, the Dies opponent was not a CIO man. He is an outstanding citizen of Beaumont, and a former state judge. The CIO would have supported him or in fact, anyone against Dies after what he has done to them—the last act of his investigating committee having been to subpoena the records of CIOPA.

Movies for Yanks

By The Associated Press. BELFAST, Ireland.—A free Sunday cinema has been set up here for Yanks who found Sundays boring. Pictures are secured through Army Special Services.

The free movie was opened after Gwen Nash McWilliam, of New York City, director of the American Red Cross at a nearby AAF station, discussed the problem of boring Sundays with two general Irishmen—William McConnel, formerly of Boston, and G. M. McCullough. There's only one drawback—the G's can't take their dates.

Medicine's Golden Decade

Blood Clot Cure Discovered

DR. PAUL LINK

LINK: Dissolves Clots
By SCHUYLER ALLMAN
Associated Press Writer

A SICK cow kicked over the lamp of research and uncovered a long-sought drug to check blood clots that spell illness and death for human beings.

The cow, in fact a number of cows, were sick from eating spoiled sweet clover. This gave them a hemorrhage disease new to veterinary science, L. M. Redrick reported in 1922.

Medical research picked up its case. It had been looking for decades for a drug to dissolve dangerous blood clots. What induced hemorrhage in cattle might dissolve blood clots in man.

Researchers stalking the blood clot went looking for a weapon in spoiled ensilage.

Link Isolates It

Then in April of 1940, Dr. Paul Link of the University of Wisconsin and co-workers announced that spoiled clover's valuable substance had been isolated. They called it discoumarin.

Discoumarin is not the only anti-coagulant, but it is generally considered to be one of the most promising. Doctors have tried a number of snake venoms and other drugs of which heparin, an acidic compound, was about the best.

Heparin is expensive, calls for prolonged and difficult administration by the vein and has a record for occasional failure.

But discoumarin may be taken by mouth, and has a record of success against such ailments as thrombophlebitis, a swelling of the leg veins caused by clotting (commonly called "phlebitis leg"), and the deadly heart disease, coronary thrombosis.

It Works Mysteriously

How discoumarin works is still a mystery.

Scientists believe it either prevents the formation of prothrombin, a protein in the blood which helps it to clot or it makes the prothrombin inactive.

A great drug of this decade, discoumarin is not the final word on the subject, for like some other wonder workers it is dangerous. It can cause fatal bleeding.

But it is one immense stride along the way to an understanding of the mechanism of the blood, which is fearfully and wonderfully made.

Cured by Penicillin

A five-year-old child was cured of bilateral cavernous sinus thrombophlebitis (an infected clot in a large blood vessel) by the use of penicillin after treatment with heparin (to help dissolve the clot) and sulfathiazole had been without detectable benefit, Victor Goodhill, M. D., Los Angeles, reports in The Journal of the American Medical Association for May 6. Until recently reports of recovery from this disease were rare.

Daily Bible Thought

We have no right to neglect God's humblest creatures. God made them, and high or low, rich or poor, white or black, bond or free, they still belong to God as well as to us. Life is a partnership: "Water ye the shoe and ye feed them."—Gen. 23:7.

THE HITLER PERIOD

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, May 19, 1934. June 12 was announced as the date for the marriage of Miss Maxine Berry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Berry of South Grand avenue, and Irvin E. Allmendinger of the Delaware pike.

The date was announced at a tea given by Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Kenneth D. Smith at the Smith home on Elmwood drive. Miss Berry was second grade teacher at the George Washington school.

Miss Edith Beall of Bucyrus and Wilbur Heller of Marion were married at the home of Rev. A. P. Keyser of Callettsburg, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fletcher of Kingsport, Tenn., were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Koehl of Windsor street.

Mrs. George Emerson and Miss Lea Reuter of Denver, Colo., and William Cannon of Lakehurst, N. J., were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Herman Murphy of Cherry street.

Week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Chambers of Forest street were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Schweinfurth of Defiance and Mr. and Mrs. Odell Thompson of Newark.

Mrs. Nora Vaughn Maler, 68, died at her home in Cardington. Officers of the graduating class of Cardon High school were chosen to head the alumni association for the next year at the annual banquet of the organization at the school. The officers were Miss Muriel West, president; Miss Josephine Haley, secretary; and Miss Dorothy Lusch, treasurer.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, May 19, 1924. Mrs. Belle Gast, 66, of Prospect, widow of Noah Gast, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Roberts of Lima.

Mrs. Mary DeMarco pleaded guilty in court at Philadelphia to a charge of kidnapping 10-week-old Corinne Modell and was sentenced to two and one-half to five years in prison and to pay a fine of $500.

Don E. J. Brockett, 51, former mayor of Marion, died suddenly at his home on South Prospect street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Tobin of Sugar Creek received news of the birth of a son to their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Dutton of Columbus, Mo. Dutton was formerly Miss Ruth Tobin.

NEW ORLEANS.—The southern forest experiment station recently rigged up an "outdoor shower bath" to solve the problem of growing pine-tree cuttings.

"For years," says E. L. Demmon, director, "foresters in this country and abroad had been washing pine cuttings in assorted hormones and other exotic plant foods. Nothing seemed to help them take root."

"Not long ago we hit on the idea of setting up a system of overhead water sprays, keeping the cuttings drenched. It clicked."

As a result of the experiment the south may some day boast super-producing turpentine trees. Selected trees yield up to 10 times as much turpentine and resin as ordinary pines, Demmon said.

UNUSUAL Army Job
By The Associated Press
CAMP DAVIS, N. C.—Cpl. Walter Stevens' job is catching mosquitoes and as the human guinea pig for the medical inspector's office, he goes out three nights a week for 15 minutes, rolls up his trouser leg and with a glass and rubber device catches all the mosquitoes unfortunate enough to take a hunk out of him. Each is examined microscopically and identified in the laboratory.

Chances of contracting malaria from the bites, the medical men say, are remote.

The Public Debt

By James D. White

WASHINGTON.—The national public debt now stands at around 187 billion dollars, but it is estimated that the war will have cost by the end of June, 1945, something like 258 billion. That is what the Treasury has budgeted for war expenditures. So the Treasury is asking congress to raise the legal limit of the public debt from its present level of 210 billion dollars to 240 billion.

One reason, it says, is the coming Fifth War Loan Drive in June, which will seek to borrow 16 billion from the people. Judging from the four previous drives it probably will get it, and raise the public debt to 202 billion.

War Exts Billions
The requested 30 billion dollar increase is expected to finance the war until early next year, after which Treasury officials assure Congress they'll be back asking for a still higher ceiling if the war in Europe is still on.

(The Treasury asked first to raise it to 260 billion but lowered its sights to the 240 billion level after opposition arose.)

You can haul these billion-bil-

lowed figures down out of the stratosphere by reducing them to what they could mean on a basis of population.

Assuming that there are 133,000,000 Americans, the present public debt means that every man, woman and child—it he shared the debt equally, which he does not—would owe $1,386.

If the ceiling is raised to 240 billion, he could owe up to $1,777.

Look At The Record
Here are previous hikes in the public debt ceiling, from the beginning of our defense effort to the present.

June, 1940—from 45 to 49 billion.
February, 1941—to 65 billion.
March, 1942—to 135 billion.
April, 1943—to 210 billion.
Requested—to 240 billion.

Let anyone think this has no relationship to what the country is producing and earning, look at the Department of Commerce's figures on the national income for a similar period.

1940—77.6 billion.
1941—96.9 billion.
1942—121.6 billion.
1943—147.9 billion.

In other words, sometime in 1943 our public debt got bigger than our annual national income, according to these government figures.

The Commerce department hasn't yet published an estimate of the national income for 1944, although it generally does so about this time of year. The estimate is late this time, say officials, because they think the figure will be affected by the course of the war—whether it ends soon or drags out beyond the new year.

War Bilizes Economics
War spending is raising faster than the rate our national income has been increasing. That's to be expected, as we send the best we have and can make against the enemy to defeat him more quickly. It's part of the cost of war.

What we do about the public debt after the war is something else. Some experts say a stable public debt is normal, healthy. Others think we ought to be paying it off. It is when the experts part company and start talking in detail that discussion becomes hard to follow.

There are about 1,700,000 4-H club members in the United States.

"I don't know what's wrong yet. They're still in conference."

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Pensive, Incorporated

THE two honest terms of the station, Kentucky Derby of around $65,000 and Pensive's win about $80,000, were a Warren Wright with a horse called Pensive. Pensive, a business magnate, was making a big money stake. We don't know how much of the gentlemen, but we can imagine a possible scene in his environment after the Pensive matter.

Mr. Wright (at his desk)—Ah, Mr. Pensive, what do you get me the papers and the Pensive matter?

Secretary—Pensive's Common of Pensive's?

Mr. Wright—There is no more common. Secretary—Oh, yes, I forgot about the common. Taken at those Lexington and Baltimore meetings.

Mr. Wright—We seem to have done very well, all things considered. Secretary—As you said at Baltimore, it was a very good spring.

Mr. Wright (studying the papers)—Pensive about $180,000 for the first quarter. That's very encouraging.

(Ben Jones, the Wright's transfer, enters.) Mr. Jones—Good morning, Mr. Wright.

Mr. Wright—Good morning, Ben. I was going over our figures for the first quarter. That Hyperion-Pensive II issue is showing splendid returns, isn't it?

Mr. Jones—It's one of the best investments on our list.

Mr. Wright—I don't know whether to do an extra dividend or put aside more for services. What do you think?

Mr. Jones—Of course the first thing to do is to keep the capital structure strong.

Wright—Well, then, it is strong, as Mr. Jones—Sure it is. It came out of both a fresh and fine. It did the most profitable for me this morning that I ever clocked.

Wright—Do you think we should hold Pensive for a quick turnover or a long pull?

Jones—It's a long pull investment, but of course $180,000 in eight days is plenty good for a turnover, but I'd hold this.

Wright—How does Pensive look at the moment?

Jones—Fine, boss. Sound, plenty of reserve, no hurried debt and a healthy surplus. I can't wait over his book value.

Wright—What was that talk of weakness just before the Churchill Downs meeting?

Jones (with a grin)—That was just a joke, boss. I'm a bull on Pensive and always have been. Such conformation! Such lines. Such withers! Such action!

Wright—Such yield!

Jones—Such prospects for the balance of the fiscal year!

Wright—Well, Miss Smathers, put the Pensive away. I guess we'll have an excellent fiscal year.

Fishing Notes

YOU won't find much about it in the fishing columns of the big-town press, but pretty close to a top striped bass fishing place just now is the Niantic River up in Connecticut, a stream that flows out of New London. This time of year, and for most of the summer and fall, it is a beautiful New England river, up and down by old-time fishing spots known as Cherry Swamp, Miss Gatty's Skunk Rock, Keeney Cove, Orwagoch, etc.

And at the head of the stream is the fisherman's mecca, "The Golden Spur," an ancient spot so named because according to legend, a British officer, fleeing from the Colonials in a hurry, left one golden spur behind in the old inn.

Rabbits
BY TRUMAN TULL

The battle with the rabbits is about to begin again. Latest battle plan to reach this command post is a scheme for building box pens which do not injure the marauders. Then, when caught, they can be given a free ride into a country (on a A-card) and released. The plan part about this is that it wasn't intended to be funny.

During the winter, we have been thinking about this problem of the rabbits and the national food supply. The rabbits, themselves, are part of the food supply, like all other edible livestock. They must be fed, or they will perish. Therefore, it seems logical just to plant enough extra to take care of the pests and call off the war entirely.

The early peas will be up soon, and they are earmarked for the rabbits. Early peas will be late peas come along they will have a chance to go un molested. If, in the meantime, the rabbits have overlooked some of the early peas, that will be a net gain. And, of course, also a net gain for rabbits.

The rabbits are this nation's ace in the hole. If an emergency comes, enough rabbits could be rounded up in any given community to make the inhabitants of that community so sick of eating meat they wouldn't feel hungry for a long bit. The rabbits are what we are holding out to beat the Axis with in the showdown. They are the people's food reserve.

Even the department of agriculture admits that rabbits can take care of themselves without any subsidies or regulations. There may be too much pork or too little beef, the butter may be rained in storage and the cheese may be shipped abroad, but there always will be rabbits.

They are hopping around right now, looking over the situation in the back yard and making notes of the date on which the early peas were planted so they can close in for the feast when the sprouts get two inches high. That is all right; that is what we would do if we were a rabbit. But we would not press our luck. We would skip every other row, so the sucker would keep on planting peas next year and the year after that. And when the late peas came along, we would let them alone and go to work on the neighbors' cabbages.

All we can hope for is that the rabbits will be as smart as we would be if we were a rabbit. If not, there is always that free ride—but not in the country.

"DISCARDED HARSH LAXATIVES"

Ex-Constipation Sufferer Praises Kellogg's All-Brans

Take nasty doses—for constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet? Then read this letter.

"I have submitted this voluntary testimony about KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN as a remedy for constipation. For years I found necessary to take so-called patent laxatives. They gave me only partial aid, and I was forced to use KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. I have discarded artificial aids. My constipation is gone. This is to help those who are in the same boat I was."

—E. E. Fisher, 90-10 Barr Place, Hudson River, N. Y.

More and more people write in about the joyous relief they get from KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Really gets at one common cause of constipation—lack of certain cellulose elements in the diet. For ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements, which help to fluff up and prepare colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. Remember, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative or medicine. It is a grain cereal—a gentle-acting "regulating" food.

If your constipation is due to a bulk deficiency in the diet, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, as cereal or in several mixtures. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't enjoy lasting relief. Get genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

NEW YORK, May 19.—It was another case of selective investment demand in today's stock market with rails retaining much of their popularity and scattered industrial stocks receding a fair amount of progress.

Appraisal of the week-end resorted bidding. Dealings showed a moderate active opening. Dealings slowed after a moderate active opening. Dealings showed a moderate active opening. Dealings showed a moderate active opening.

Ahead were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Peapack, Western Union, Du Pont, American Telephone, Bethlehem, and U. S. Rubber. Interim interest rates were Chrysler, U. S. Steel, General Electric and Texas Co.

COMMISSION SALES DROPS WHEAT PRICE

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Commission sales selling depressed wheat futures prices in moderate trading today and caused a slight recession in the grain market. The position of cash wheat tended to rise, the effect of excellent growing weather and a favorable outlook for the winter crop.

Estimates of total Canadian wheat acreage this year placed it at 20 million acres, an increase of about four million acres over that seeded in 1943.

There was heavy buying of December oats by a leading broker with local traders supplying the offerings. There also was some selling of December oats by cash interests against purchases of September.
